Art Unit: 1771

1. The claim objections are withdrawn in view of the present amendment.

- The art rejections over JP 2000-006283 A taken alone or in combination with EP 768 are maintained.
- The 102 art rejections over KR 2002088479 are considered moot in view of the claim cancellation.
- 4. The 103 art rejections over KR 2002088479 in view of several references are maintained.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 6. Claims 1-3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP 2000-006283 A substantially as set forth in the 04/11/2005 Office Action. Applicants argue that as shown in figure 2 of JP'283, the grove 17 does not contain any foam as the examiner alleges. It is not true. The examiner directs Applicants to paragraph 0028. The foaming resin is accumulated in the groove 17. Accordingly, the claimed subject matter is anticipated by JP'283.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

- 8. Claims 4 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 2000-006283, as applied to claims 3 above, further in view of EP 768 160 substantially as set forth in the 04/11/2005 Office Action. The same reasons set forth in the paragraph no. 6 are believed to be pertinent.
- 9. Claims 1-3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over KR 2002088479 in view of JP 2000-006283 substantially as set forth in the 04/11/2005 Office Action. The art rejections have been maintained for the following reasons. Applicants argue that KR'479 discloses the structure for preventing the generation of a gap between the core layer and the skin layer. Applicants then conclude that KR'479 does not teach the joint structure comprising a foam staying space as recited by the claims. The examiner disagrees. KR'479 is related to a joint structure to eliminate the gap between the skin and the core and "the gap" here is simply meant by the air layer between the skin and the core. The elimination of "the gap" does not mean that no polyurethane foam layer is found between the skin and the core as argued by Applicants because as shown in the figure, the polyurethane foam is occupied between the core and the skin. Accordingly, the art rejections are maintained.
- 10. Claims 4 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over KR 2002088479 A in view of JP 2000-006283, as applied to claim 3 above, in view of EP 768 160 A substantially as set forth in the 04/11/2005 Office Action. The same reasons set forth in the paragraph no. 6 are believed to be pertinent.

Conclusion

11. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
